Charities are being invited to apply for grants of up to £1m for programmes that will help communities recover from the effects of the coronavirus epidemic. The People's PostCode Lottery is providing £3m in funding to high-impact charities and initial projects that could help communities in England recover from problems that have been highlighted or exacerbated by the outbreak, it said. Grants of £500,000 and £1m are available. The PPL said priority areas of support include educational inequality, homelessness, domestic violence, health and well-being, poverty, social exclusion and isolation. It says applications that have other obvious benefits community will also be considered. Applications can be made until October 30 and successful organizations will be announced in March.Laura Chow, head of charities at the PPL, said: This fund will give charities an important opportunity to innovate in a way that will deliver long-term benefits. We recognize that without additional intervention, there is a real risk the effects of the epidemic will be irreversible on the most vulnerable people in our society. For more information and to apply, click here. The increase in funding is available thanks to people's postcode lottery players. Interested organizations can apply to one of four trusts, each of which focuses on different topics: Postcode Neighbourhood Trust will help good causes affected by COVID-19. Groups seeking to adapt or expand services or to increase their resilience should be applied. The People's Postal Code Trust funded projects aimed at promoting human rights, combating discrimination and helping to prevent poverty. The Community Trust postcode supports initiatives that work to improve health and well-being in the community, including those that seek to reduce isolation. The Trust also supports projects that increase participation in the arts and physical entertainment. The Local Trust postcode is for groups seeking to increase community access to outdoor spaces and improve biodiversity. Groups seeking to improve sustainability or combat climate change are also encouraged to apply. Good causes should apply to the trust that best supports the goals of their project. Short sponsorship guides and eligibility tests can be found on each trusted website to help applicants. Laura Chow, head of charities at the People's PostCode Lottery, said: Over the past few months, we have seen the important role that good causes of base play in communities across Britain. I am delighted that people's postcode lottery players can assist these organizations with this sponsorship opportunity. Almost £7 million will be awarded in funding, so I call on smaller, good local causes and groups to visit the trust site, see where their project will fit best and get applied. A minimum of 32% per ticket goes directly to charities. People's Postal Code lottery players have raised more than £500 million for 7,500 good causes across Britain and internationally since 2005. Priority areas of support include educational inequality, homelessness, domestic violence, health and well-being, poverty, social exclusion, and isolation. Applications that have other obvious benefits to the community will also be considered. The funding will come from the Postcode Dream Trust, which was created to provide opportunities for charities to deliver their dream projects through collaboration. The Trust's work has been rearranged this year to support Covid-19 recovery efforts. Laura Chow, Head of Charity at the People's PostCode Lottery said: Charities across the country have been doing a great job of supporting those who rely on them in times of need. Many of our supported charities have adapted to meet the enhanced needs of the community during the epidemic. The fund will give charities an important opportunity to innovate in a way that will provide long-term benefits, thanks to the support of people's postcode lottery players. We recognize that without additional intervention, there is a real risk that the impact of the epidemic will be irreversible on the most vulnerable people in our society. Applications for the Postal Code Recovery Fund can be made from today (October 1) until October 30. There is a three-stage application process: Phase 1 invites charities to submit senior details of their projects and the issues they are trying to solve. Phase 2 includes projects shortlisted for more detailed project applications. Phase 3 will invite the best scheduled 2016 exams to be formally presented to a judging board. Successful apps will be announced in March 2021.* We do not share your email or personal information. Local charities and community groups are being encouraged to apply for grants of up to £20,000 from a pot worth more than £3 Million donated by people's postcode lottery players. A range of community organizations, from registered charities to community groups and social enterprises, can apply for grants of between £500 and £20,000. Applications are open today for two weeks until Wednesday August 14. Grants are available through three different trusts, all funded by our players. Each trust supports projects that focus on specific topics: People's Postal Code Trust wants applications from projects aimed at promoting human rights, combating discrimination and preventing poverty. The Community Trust postal code supports initiatives that work to improve the health and well-being of the community, including and physical entertainment, as well as projects focused on reducing isolation. The Local Trust postal code provides funding to groups dedicated to improving outdoor and outdoor spaces access to it. Teams working on flood prevention measures and seeking to implement renewable energy strategies are also eligible to apply. More than 300 group-themed projects were awarded funding earlier this year, with sports groups for army veterans, counseling support services for child caregivers and sensory gardens for people with dementia among the projects benefiting. Laura Chow, Head of Charity at the People's PostCode Lottery, said that not only will players win with the People's PostCode Lottery - more than £3 million in grants will have a tremendous impact on the great work that base groups are doing in communities across England. Between the three trusts, there is scope for a range of projects to benefit and I would urge all groups to review the funding guidelines and apply. A minimum of 32% from the fare goes directly to good causes. So far, People's Postal Code lottery players have raised more than £450 million for more than 6,500 good causes across the UK and internationally. International.
